vroc.ca
virtualresearcheroncall
chercheurvirtueldegarde

This month at Virtual Researcher On Call...

SCIENCE SCOOP

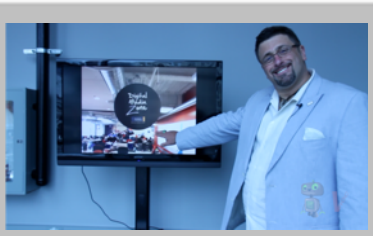

October 3, 2012 - Ekta Bibra, a 4th year student at the University of Waterloo fills us in on the International Genetic Engineered Machines Team (iGEM). What's iGEM? Learn more!

October 31, 2012 - Happy Halloween!
Be prepared for the next Zombie apocalypse or flu season... Watch as Dr. Robert Smith from the University of Ottawa explains why he uses Zombies as a model to understand how diseases are spread.

TECH TALK

October 17, 2012 - Sean Wise, Canadian expert on venture capital and Professor of Entrepreneurship and Strategy at Ryerson University explains Ryerson's Digital Media Zone and some of the technology he uses on a daily basis in his many roles. Watch here!

ENGINEER THIS

October 29, 2012 - Great advice for those interested in aviation from Paul De Oude at the Aviation Centre of Excellence at Confederation College. In this episode, Paul covers how to succeed in the program, what you will leave the program with, and the personal skills required to succeed.

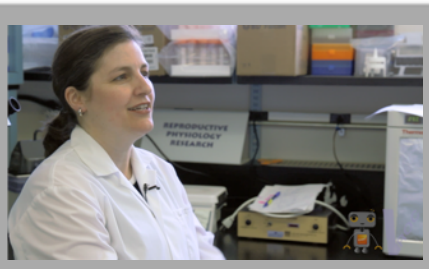

WHY MATH

October 8, 2012 - Kurt McLaughlin on the theories and formulas he uses to create the physical structures for a show like Cirque du Soleil. Watch here!

October 15, 2012 - Renato Faush of RSP Motor Sports explains the dynamometer, a tool used to simultaneously measure force and torque to determine the power produced by an engine. Learn more!

October 22, 2012 - In this episode Dr. Gaby Mastromonaco from the Toronto Zoo discusses the math behind reproductive science.